

Janesville Zoning and Subdivision Code Rewrite - Open House

June 18, 2026 | 5:30p-7:00p | Hedberg Public Library

Project Overview

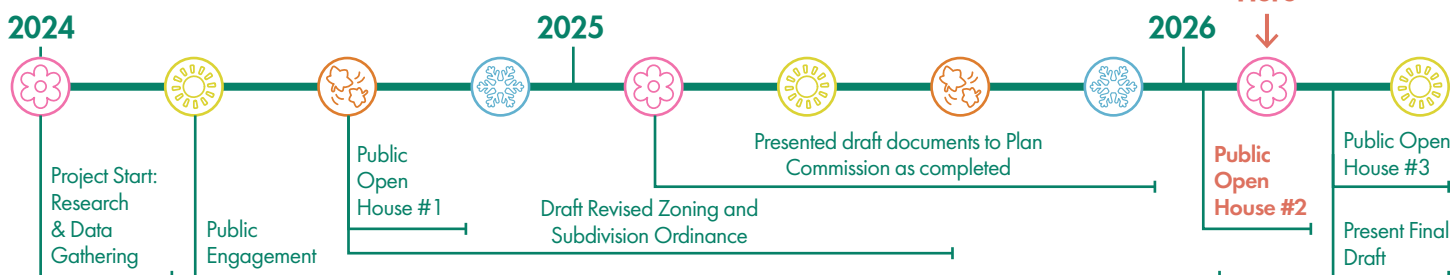

The current City of Janesville Zoning Ordinance was adopted in 1981 - with parts of the subdivision ordinance written in the 1970's. The current zoning ordinance is in need of a substantial update in order to provide greater opportunity for continued growth and success of the community.

The City of Janesville updated the Comprehensive Plan in December 2023, setting a vision for the future of the community including potential changes to the zoning code and subdivision ordinance. An updated Janesville land development code will be simplified, responsive to market conditions, and facilitate high-quality development.

Credit: Full Spectrum Photography

Project Timeline

Credit: Full Spectrum Photography

Public Input/Get Involved!

Community members are encouraged to provide feedback to inform the new code's development. Please visit the project website by scanning the QR code with your phone camera to provide feedback and stay up to date!

Next Steps

After today's event, there will be further revisions and public review of the draft code. Here are the next steps leading to adoption:

1. Collect information and review all comments
2. Plan Commission review of the following:
 - Public comments
 - Potential revisions
 - Draft zoning map and subdivision ordinance
3. Open House #3 on draft zoning map
4. Public hearings/review/adoption by Plan Commission and City Council

Project website:

Review the draft code:

